DVD43 Plug-in is specially designed to work with 1Click DVD Copy in order to allow instant DVD decrypting during copy operations. With its help, you can bypass the copy-protection schemes (CSS) integrated into DVDs and thus avoid restriction issues when trying to create copies of discs. The plugin installs into the system without requiring any configuration or feedback from the user's part. It's all just a matter of pressing a few 'Next' buttons and once the setup process is finished, you can go ahead and use 1Click DVD Copy to backup your DVDs. Also, there is an integrated API that allows developers to implement DVD decryption capabilities into their applications. The decryption plug-in provides a method for the DVD copy application to unlock the movie files on a DVD and read their content without restrictions. During this operation, the original DVD is not altered in any way and its content is not affected. What DVD43 Plug-in actually does is override the CSS encryption of the disc in order to allow 1Click DVD Copy to access the content of the DVD. There is also a system tray application (named DVD43) that you can use for the same purpose, with a much wider compatibility range, supporting multiple DVD rippers or players. While DVD43 runs on 32-bit systems only, the plugin version can be installed on 64-bit versions of Windows as well.
